Revolutionary changes in procedure in equity cases in federal courts throughout the United States are effected in revised rules promulgated today by the Supreme Court of the United States. The object is to reduce the cost of litigation and to eliminate delays. The new rules were announced by Chief Justice White from the bench. One of the tasks undertaken by him when he was appointed chief justice was to reform procedure in the courts. He first revised the rules of the Supreme Court itself. This is the second revision put into force.

At Work Seventeen Months.

For seventeen months the Chief Justice and Justices Lurton and Vandevanter have been working on the equity rules as a subcommittee of the court. They asked every federal judge throughout the country to get expressions from their respective bar associations on the subject, and wrote to many others asking for suggestions. These suggestions were collated and digested by W. J. Hughes of the Department of Justice by the subcommita heritage from the courts of England, and is moving eastward. It is preceded by with one or two revisions, since the beginning of the republic. The last revision was about fifty years ago. The Chief Justice particularly thanked the lord chance lor of England for suggestions in the revision.
